

Social aspects of the deployment of a management information system

Vlastimil Čejp

Abstract: The article deals with the deployment of information systems. The topic is not about the principles technical and structural elements of the software to support management control and decision making, but about a reflection on the social aspects and social risks, in particular the deployment of such a system.

Keywords: Managerial information system- MIS, Business, personal relations, firm culture, information technology stress

JEL classification: M15, O31